PEP Continues the Reverse Trade Show Concept

“What is a reverse trade show?” Begun in recent years in our region, this industrial trade show brings decision-makers from large industry together in one location. Ticket holders from the supplier, vender and service sectors are the visitors who walk through the show “calling on” plant managers, purchasing managers, and engineers and maintenance managers.

The event benefits everyone involved. Industry leaders offer their afternoon to exhibit along side their counterparts from other large companies. Sales representatives can meet with decision-makers from more than thirty of the area's large industries. There is no limit to networking opportunities!

As an organization of area businesses that promotes economic development while enhancing the environment, Partners for Environmental Progress knows the importance of interacting with key people in business and industry.

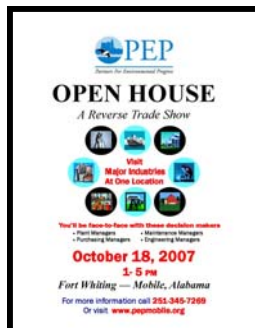

Again this year, the PEP Open House will be held at the beautifully renovated Fort Whiting Auditorium in the Brookley Industrial Complex. We will enjoy a large exhibit hall and plenty of parking.

The public is invited to attend. Tickets are $75 for PEP members and $125 for non-members. Registration information is available through the PEP office at (251)345-7269 or at www.pepmobile.org.

Relocating an Osprey Family at the Atlantic Marine Alabama Shipyard

In June of this year, two young ospreys managed to stay in their nest on the turnbuckle of a boom crane on a Titan Salvage barge which was in lay-up at Atlantic Marine Alabama's shipyard in Mobile. As the crane boom was lowered, the nest ended up suspended approximately 40 feet above the deck of the barge. Upon notification by Atlantic Marine, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service relocated these federally protected birds.

Atlantic Marine's carpentry shop, under the direction of Hal Jones, Environmental Coordinator, constructed a spacious nest platform that was installed on shore on top of a power pole about 75 feet from the barge. After a tedious move to this safer home, the two juveniles were comfortably perched on the new nest, with the mother osprey beside them.
